

SHEN YifeiBiography

Shen Yifei, associate professor of School of social development and public policy, Fudan University, director of family development research center of Fudan University, vice president of Shanghai marriage and Family Research Association, vice president of China sociology family sociology professional committee, executive director of China sociology social gender professional committee, and director of Shanghai family education research Association. Yan Jing scholar of Harvard University, director of Shanghai family time community service center. Energy teases the founder. The official account: Yi Fei has words, energy tease.

Workshop Description

Workshop Title: The challenge of Family-School Co-Education in the Post Figurative Era

- Post figurative culture: the elders learn from the younger generation in turn. China is rapidly entering the era of post figurative culture.
- The emergence of intensive maternal culture: the more time and energy we spend on children, the better and share weal and woe with children.
- From four generations to a bowl of soup, two doors, cooperative parenting also brings educational conflicts
- The increase of divorce rate leads to the change of parent-child relationship and diversification of family role and education concept
- The emergence of second child leads to new problems
- The acclimatization brought by the western concept of child care
- Attach importance to home school cooperation to meet educational challenges